ii. Executive Summary of the Annual PHA Plan

[24 CFR Part 903.7 9 (r)]

Provide a brief overview of the information in the Annual Plan, including highlights of major initiatives and discretionary policies the PHA has included in the Annual Plan.

The Middlesex County Public Housing Agency (PHA) provides U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development Section 8 Rental Assistance to eligible very low income renter households, giving preference to families living or working in the sixteen municipalities within the county which do not have their own public housing agencies.

In January 2001 the PHA opened its waiting list for four days and received 2215 walk-in and mail-in applications. By October 2003 the list was down to 1500 households. It will take about seven more years to exhaust this list, so the PHA does not plan to take applications for the foreseeable future.

During 2004 the PHA will apply for any additional Housing Choice Vouchers for which it is eligible, and which are of a type consistent with the PHA's mission and staff capabilities.

The PHA operates within the County Department of Housing and Community Development which also administers HUD's Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) and HOME Investment Partnerships programs. The CDBG program serves nineteen municipalities, sixteen of which also are served by the PHA (though the PHA, under certain conditions, serves clients from all municipalities in the county.) The CDBG program sometimes provides loans to help non-profit organizations develop plans for affordable housing, as well as providing bridge loans for affordable housing projects which will receive permanent funding from other sources.

The HOME program serves twenty three municipalities, and focuses on the creation of very low income rental housing, consistent with the needs identified in the Urban County and HOME consortium’s Consolidated Plan. HOME-subsidized housing is open to Section 8 clients, but is affordable to at least some very low income households without further assistance, thus freeing up Section 8 to help other families living in market-rate rental housing, which makes up the majority of the county’s rental housing stock.

The County Department of Housing and Community Development, within which the PHA operates, prepares and oversees the County’s Consolidated Plan, a five-year and annual document required by HUD for participation in its programs. This insures that the PHA Plan and operations are consistent with the Consolidated Plan.

Summary of Resident Advisory Board Meeting of 7 October 2003, 6:30 PM

RAB Members: Jennifer Giles, Gabriel Kovacs, Shelley Samocki, Rhonda Taylor

PHA Staff: John Sully, Jack Balog, Eleanor Kukulya, Evelyn Rivera, Jean Settle

Executive Director John Sully opened the meeting with introductions, noting that everyone had been sent the summary of members' comments from the last Resident Advisory Board meeting. He welcomed two new members, Jennifer Giles and Rhonda Taylor. There were no corrections or amendments to the summary. He noted that each Board member present is enrolled in college courses, in most cases while holding down a job. Ms. Giles attends Raritan Valley College; Mr. Kovacs is completing the last of his work at Rutgers University; Ms. Samocki attends the DeVry Institute; and Ms. Taylor is a student at Middlesex County College.

Mr. Sully then asked for any comments on the draft 2004 PHA Plan which had been mailed to all members, noting that the Plan was substantially the same as last year's. Board members asked for no changes to the Plan.

Mr. Sully then reviewed the status of the Section 8 Homeownership program, noting that Middlesex County is waiting until the NJ Department of Community Affairs' program is well underway in order to use it as a model, if successful. The NJDCA program has started in Mercer County, but there are plans to expand it county by county once DCA is confident they have developed a reliable process. Once DCA has refined the program, the County intends to use it as a model. It is not clear whether this will be able to start in 2004. Mr. Sully noted that without additional PHA staff, it will be very difficult to implement such a program, because everyone is already working overtime to keep up with new certifications, recertifications and a flood of portable clients coming in from other nearby jurisdictions, mostly New Brunswick and Plainfield.

Ms. Taylor asked what the criteria would be for being allowed to enroll in the homeownership program, noting that the qualities the person has displayed as a tenant should be an important consideration. Clients with a good record should be given preference, while those with repeated problems should be scrutinized very carefully if they ask to enter the program. Mr. Sully stated that client performance would certainly be part of the criteria, as would holding a stable job and being willing to undergo homeownership training offered by the Housing Coalition of Central Jersey.

Mr. Kovacs asked whether disabled people would be considered for homeownership, and wondered how many would qualify. He noted that with regard to tenants' relationships with landlords, the fact that there are some bad landlords should be taken into account. He cited an instance where his former landlord wanted to get him out of an apartment, seeking to rent it out at a higher price, taking advantage of the fact that his mother had recently died.

In response to a question from Ms. Taylor, Mr. Sully said he had no specific timetable for starting the homeownership program, but that several things were happening which might make such a program more successful than it formerly might have been. The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development is coming out with a homeownership block grant to HOME participating jurisdictions, of which the County is one. This could potentially provide funds to help with down payments and closing costs, or for soft-second mortgages which would only have to be repaid out of the proceeds when the property was sold, meaning that they would not add to but reduce the monthly payment burden. The amount of the new HUD grant still is unknown.

He also noted that commercial banks and their mortgage subsidiaries are starting to develop lending programs targeted as first-time low income homebuyers. These programs take into account prior credit problems which have been resolved, and charge favorable interest rates, unlike some lenders' prior practice of charging lower income clients much higher rates than those given to middle and upper income homebuyers. He said these new programs are being offered at least in part because banks are coming to understand that lower income people constitute a largely-untapped market and can be good homeowners, and also because Fannie Mae and similar entities are supporting these programs, providing a backup for the retail lending institutions making the initial loans.

Ms. Giles said she believed that some landlords unfavorably stereotype Section 8 tenants as people who maintain units poorly and cause other problems. There are a lot of rental agents, and landlords go to them to find tenants instead of taking Section 8 voucher holders who apply. She suggested that the PHA provide more information on the Section 8 program to rental agents and landlords.

Ms. Giles also noted that landlords sometimes reject prospective Section 8 tenants because of their credit report, but noted that a friend of hers with poor credit but not on Section 8 got into a property that rejected her (Ms. Giles) who has Section 8 but good credit. Mr. Sully said that landlords are allowed to use the same legitimate criteria for Section 8 clients as for other tenants, but cannot discriminate against any prospective tenants, including Section 8 tenants, because of their source of income. This NJ Supreme Court ruling applies to all rental complexes of over four units; landlords of smaller properties have greater leeway. Ms. Giles believes that landlords should place less weight on credit checks and more on references.

Mr. Sully noted that the PHA staff encourages prospective landlords to check clients' references.

Ms. Taylor said it would be helpful to Section 8 clients to know what a landlord's criteria are, and their process for choosing tenants. However, she said that she personally did not feel she had experienced discrimination by any landlord.

Ms. Samocki asked what happens when a family member goes from full time student status, where only a small part of their income is counted, to part time student status, when their full income is counted. If the family income then is too high, will they be thrown off the Section 8 program? The staff answered that even if a family's income went so high that Section 8 paid none of the rent, they could still come back on the program within six months. After six months they go off the program.

Ms. Giles said that her landlord was pretty good, and was a private owner of the condominium who then rented it out.

Mr. Kovacs said he had experienced an instance where the landlord turned hostile as soon as Section 8 was mentioned.

Staff member Jean Settle said that a couple of clients had called her to say that one apartment complex – Royal Oaks – had instituted a household income threshold of $40,000, and had asked her to verify this with the complex.

3. In what manner did the PHA address those comments? (select all that apply)

PHA Plan - Attachment 1: Progress in meeting 5-Year Plan Mission and Goals

During 2003 the PHA pursued its mission of promoting adequate and affordable housing, economic opportunity and a suitable living environment free from discrimination.

HUD Strategic Goal: Increase the availability of decent, safe and affordable housing.

The PHA has improved consistency of voucher utilization in 2003. Because of a very tight rental market, the PHA has found it difficult to meet HUD's utilization target through issuance of new vouchers alone, so has absorbed portable clients as needed to keep utilization high. Many new vouchers have been issued to clients on the waiting list, but many clients have not been able to find suitable housing within the permitted 120 days. The PHA will continue to issue new vouchers and to absorb existing portable clients as necessary in 2004 to attempt to gain a 98% or better utilization rate.

PHA staff worked in conjunction with the County's HOME Investment Partnerships program to create new affordable housing in Middlesex County. During 2003 construction was completed on Maple Tree Manor, an 88 unit very low income senior housing project in Woodbridge Township. Construction began on National Church Residences at South River II, a new 75 unit very low income senior development in South River, which also received HUD Section 202 funds, allowing it to serve extremely low income persons. Recently a HOME Agreement was signed with Maher Manor, a forthcoming 100 unit very low income senior housing development in Old Bridge.

In 2003 construction also began on a new 16 unit transitional housing project for homeless families with HIV/AIDS, which also received HUD Supportive Housing funding as well as HOME funds.

In 2003 the Board of Chosen Freeholders allocated $1,000,000 in County funds for new affordable senior housing, and expects to allocate the same amount in each of the next four years. $380,000 of this fund has been awarded to the Old Bridge senior housing, with $450,000 more set aside for a proposed senior project in South Brunswick.

The County's HOME program funds only projects which produce very low income housing units, and seeks to get a longer guaranteed period of affordability than HUD regulations require, if possible. The HOME funds allocated to these projects leverage very substantial amounts of other public (federal, state, local) funds as well as private funds.

Middlesex County Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds continue to be allocated for housing rehabilitation loans to low income homeowners, and some CDBG funds are being used to create low income units in the southern part of the county.

Client satisfaction with Section 8 housing has been very high because of caring staff work with clients and thorough enforcement of HUD's HQS standards. PHA inspectors respond quickly to complaints from tenants or landlords.

The PHA increased housing choices by providing voucher mobility counseling and materials, and by promptly processing clients coming in from other jurisdictions. The PHA has not yet implemented a voucher homeownership program, but will continue to evaluate its feasibility based on the experience of the NJ Department of Community Affairs' program, which began in adjacent Mercer County in 2003.

HUD Strategic Goal: Improve community quality of life and economic vitality.

By working carefully with their clients, PHA staff encouraged assisted families to be stable and responsible tenants. There has been a very low incidence of tenant/landlord problems, with landlord complaints on fewer than 2% of clients. There has been only one Section 8 eviction to date in 2003.

HUD Strategic Goal: Ensure equal opportunity in housing for all Americans

As recommended (in general) by the PHA, $88,399 in CDBG funds was allocated in 2003 to help support the Housing Coalition of Central Jersey, the County's designated Fair Housing organization, which handles fair housing cases and takes other actions to insure equal access to assisted and other housing regardless of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, familial status and disability. The PHA is not aware of any fair housing cases in 2003 involving its clients. However, it is frequently alleged that landlords use credit checks and prior landlord references, both legal means of screening clients, as means of discrimination against Section 8 voucher holders.

The Housing Coalition also provides landlord-tenant counseling and other services which promote housing opportunities for low income persons and families.

PHA Plan – Attachment 2: Resident Membership of the PHA Governing Board

In conjunction with the requirement to appoint a Resident Member to the PHA governing body, County Counsel has researched the PHA's enabling legislation and determined that the PHA was established under a New Jersey law, N.J.S.A. 40:32A-1, which subsequently was repealed and replaced by N.J.S.A. 40A:12A-1 et seq. The present State enabling legislation appears to require a differently-structured governing body ("authority") than the PHA now has.

Since its creation under the earlier law in the late 1970s, solely for the purpose of administering Section 8 Rental Assistance, and owning no public housing or other property, the PHA's governing body has been the County's elected governing body, the Board of Chosen Freeholders. All PHA matters requiring governing body action, such as paying rents, approving applications, plans and reports, etc. are handled via the regular agenda of the bi-weekly Freeholder meetings. Present State law may require that this procedure be revised, though the body of law appears to contemplate traditional housing authorities which own and manage property instead of solely providing rental assistance to clients living in private-market housing.

Consequently, County Counsel and the Board of Chosen Freeholders are reviewing the current enabling legislation to determine if a change in the PHA structure is needed.
