The cost of rental housing units in Berkeley is substantially higher than rents allowed by HUD. BHA is unable to maintain the 98 percent lease-up rate necessary for high performer status. The lack of units available within the FMR, local landlords' natural aversion to increased paperwork, the apparent disincentive in light of statewide Costa-Hawkins legislation, and HUD's regulatory policy that allows owners to opt-out of the Section 8 Program, all contribute to this low lease-up rate. The approved exception payment standard allows BHA to house people who have been issued Section 8 vouchers and increase the number of units available to these residents by increasing the amount of rent that can be paid on a per voucher basis.

PUBLIC HOUSING DECONCENTRATION PLAN

The following is contained in the BHA's Admissions and Continued Occupancy Policy, Chapter 5, Section VIII.

“BHA’s analysis of its family (general occupancy) developments to determine concentrations of poverty did not indicate the need for measures to promote deconcentration of poverty or income mixing. The BHA will analyze the concentrations at least annually during the Agency Plan review process.

The policy and process for managing and promoting the deconcentration of poverty in the public housing complexes is founded on the premise there are distinct social and agency benefits to be derived from promoting and maintaining affordable housing developments which are occupied by families that have a range of incomes and that are not concentrated by very low-income families. This premise is recognized not only as an agency policy and goal, but as a requirement of law.

Deconcentration and income mixing for the BHA results in the formation of more stable and cohesive resident communities. Working families become positive role models for other families in the community who still rely on public assistance. The increased rental revenue also reduces the BHA’s dependence on the federal government.

Deconcentration Efforts

The BHA will achieve deconcentration of poverty and income-mixing at the developments by bringing higher income families into the lower income complexes. Each year the BHA will conduct an analysis of tenant income and income mix date within the complex. If the analysis shows a mix of tenant incomes that are predominately higher, the complex will be designated a “higher income complex.” It will be designated a “lower income complex” if the tenant income mix is predominately lower.

The BHA will not take any adverse action toward any family member that chooses not to accept occupancy of an offered unit. The skipping of a family on the waiting list to reach another family in order to implement the policy under this section shall not be considered an adverse action and shall not be contestable.

The BHA has set a flat rent for each public housing unit. The BHA will post the flat rents at the central office. The rents will be incorporated in this policy upon approval by the Board of Commissioners.

Implementation of the BHA’s deconcentration efforts will not impose or require any specific income or racial quota for these developments.”

Explanation of PHA Response

Comments received from Candace Etter pertain to chapters in the BHA Section 8 Administrative Plan. BHA will consider all comments as part of the comprehensive review and update of its Section 8 Administrative Plan during the next planning year.

Additional individual comments were received from Jill Dunner. All items, except for three that have been incorporated in the BHA Annual Plan update, will be considered as part of the comprehensive review and update of its Section 8 Administrative Plan. The three items that appear in the updated Plan are as follow:

- The BHA commits to working with tenant groups and non-profit organizations who are working to develop and implement a credit check procedure which is more convenient and less costly to prospective tenants attempting to secure a Section 8 unit.
- The BHA commits to administering a Section 8 Homeownership Program in FY 2002 with the assistance of interested tenant groups and non-profit organizations.
- The BHA commits to pursuing a program of shared housing for the Section 8 program with the assistance of interested tenant groups and non-profit organizations.
